

To Whom It May Concern:

It's no secret that Scott Walker doesn't have the interests of the Wisconsin people in his heart. But threatening potential protestors with the Wisconsin National Guard is unspeakable.

In his bid to do business with and for giant corporations, Walker has taken it upon himself to propose a budget and create a bill that would deny rights to thousands of working people in Wisconsin. Forming a union and bargaining collectively are civil, moral and legal rights we have as Americans. Unfortunately, Walker believes not only in stamping out these rights, but in infringing on the freedom of speech of those who, like me, so adamantly oppose his ideas.

Scott Walker claims to be the governor of a democratic state, but if I didn't know any better, I'd say we were living in a totalitarian regime. This is not the Wisconsin and I know and it isn't the Wisconsin I want. I encourage concerned citizens to stand up against Scott Walker and his big-business, anti-middle-class ideals.
